Re: COVID-19 How's Your Cleaning System Working for You?

I'm sure we are all tired of hearing how we need to safeguard against COVID-19. The big question now is, "have you made the investment to do what is necessary or are you still doing the minimum of what is required?" There is lots of uncertainty during these times, however, you can be rest assured that we are committed to providing products and customized programs that your facility needs to meet the highest standards in preparation and cleanliness.

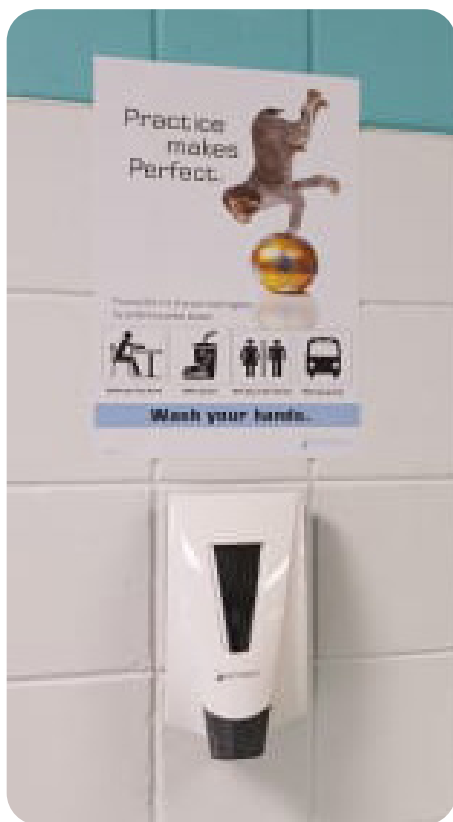

Let's start with some shopping tips:

- Look for innovative, high performance, packaging and products that promote human health and safety.
- Safer products – employees may be sensitive to the following ingredients: butyl, solvents, and alcohol-based products.
- Recyclable and biodegradable. We offer products that use up to 83% less plastic.
- Dilution control so your staff does not need to become chemists, as well as eliminating direct contact with products.
- Green Seal doesn't hurt! If you are not familiar with Green Seal, it is an independent, non-profit, dedicated to safeguarding the environment. They will certify companies determined to be environmentally responsible in regards to product and service.
- Start switching over to products and chemicals using Microban Technology. Microban adds proactive protection against microbes.

Where are we going with this? We are your janitorial supply company that takes care of all these needs. Take care of the three levels of protection.

1. Protect yourself with a thorough hand hygiene program.
2. Intermittently protect your facility with a disinfectant program that eliminates pathogenic microorganisms.
3. Use the appropriate machines to get the job done right.
